THE ONE

At age 14, Christopher Ennis worked at a store as a sweeper and dishwasher, and even cooking the fish. One day he was promoted to lounge where he is now the chef. He'll be serving California

Just as the fishermen are docking up and taking stock of the day's best catches, they get a call from their neighbor, Cafe Del Rey's Jason Niederkorn, wondering what he's going to be serving in a few hours. Formerly the chef at Newport Beach's acclaimed Aubergine, Niederkorn is revamping the entire menu at this classic dockside restaurant, moving it in a French-Mediterranean direction. But the already popular "Day Boat Del Rey" menu remains in full effect, featuring those fresh catches, along with the fishing boat's name, provenance and captain. The chef is also rolling out a new raw bar with king crab legs, enormous prawns and oysters. 4451 Admiralty Wy., Marina del Rey, 310.823.6395.

KING OF THE VALLEY

Specials are scribbled on a chalkboard outside Fish King. The adjacent quick-order restaurant serves fried fish on paper plates along with coleslaw and chowder. Pickled herring and seaweed salads accompany an extensive array of sashimi-grade fish. Take a number, then peruse the grocery section—it's going to take a while. 722 N. Glendale Ave., Glendale, 818.244.2161.
